No. II. 2d. Series.

Seize Quartier of Elizabeth, (Of York)

Queen Consort to Henry VII.

NOTES TO THE SECOND SERIES.

(1) The Father of Tudor ap Grono (who d. 1367) was Grono ap Tudor Captain of 20 archers in Aquitaine (who d. 1331) whose father was (another) Tudor ap Grono, of Pennynedd (who d. 1311) s. and h. of Grono ap Ednyfed Vychan, of Trefgastel, co. Anglesey, who was younger s. of Ednyfed Vychan ap Kendrig, of Brynffenigi, co. Denbigh. one of the most distinguished warriors in the wars of Llewellyn, Prince of North Wales, against John, King of England, and Randolph, Earl of Chester. A descent from the early Princes of South Wales (900 to 1200), thro' Gwenllian, da. of Rhys, Prince of South Wales (1197), wife to this Ednyfed, is given in Table DCIX of Betham's "Genealogical Tables," 1795, and in Table CCCCXCIV of Anderson's "Royal Genealogies," 1736.

(2) It was thro' the mother of this Margaret that Edmund (Tudor), Earl of Richmond, had any English descent whatever. This Lady was, Eleanor, da. of Llewellyn ap Griffith ap Tangwirst, by Katharine, da. of Llewellyn ap Griffith, PRINCE OF NORTH WALES (slain 1282) and Eleanor his wife, da. of the celebrated Simon (de Montfort), EARL OF LEICESTER. See references as in note "(1)."

(3) John of Gaunt, was heir male (presumptive) to his nephew Richard II, whom, however he predeceased by about a year. His son and heir, Henry IV, de facto King, since 30 Sep., 1399, became on the death of Richard II, 14 Feb. following, the (actual) heir male of all the preceding Kings of the house of Plantagenet. The right of the heir male to the crown had never yet been set aside in favour of the heir general; Constance of Bretagne was not considered de jure Queen, 1203 to 1241 (to the detriment of King John and Henry III) tho' unquestionably during those dates she was the heir general; while the accession (some 50 years previous) of Henry II was a mere matter of arrangement, rendered necessary by the total extinction of the heirs male of the Conqueror.

(4) An interesting account of the Swinford family, and of the issue of Katharine Roet, both by Sir Hugh Swinford and John of Gaunt, and the respective legitimation of each of her said issue, &c., is in "Excerpta Historica" (1831) pp. 152-159.

(5) It is probable that John Beaufort was born before the death (1372) of his mother's husband, Sir Hugh Swinford; indeed Richard III expressly says of him that he was "in double advoutrow [i.e. adultery] gotten." He himself was a Knight in 1391, while his younger brother (Henry) was a Bishop in 1397. The character of the mother may be gathered from the fact that the legitimacy of her son, Thomas Swinford, (undoubtedly born during her coverture) was questioned and had to be declared by letters patent, 5 Oct., 1411, before he could inherit as her heir. The whole of what Baker ("Chronicles" p. 141) calls the "valourous offspring," of John of Gaunt (i.e. the adulterous progeny born in his wife's lifetime) consisted of 3 sons and 1 daughter, viz., John as in the text (whose male issue became extinct in 1471) Thomas, the well-known Cardinal Beaufort (who d. unm. 1447) Thomas, Duke of Exeter (who d. s.p. 1426) and Joan, Countess of Westmorland. In Feb., 1397 all these were legitimated by Richard II, the proceeding being ratified by Parliament. This patent was confirmed by Henry IV, 10 Feb. 1407, with, however, the words "exceptâ dignitate regali," which appear then to have been added to the original enrolment, tho' not improbably, only ex abundanti cautela.

(6) See the "life of Margaret Beaufort, Countess of Richmond and Derby" by Caroline A. Halsted (1839). She was the Founder of St. John's College, Cambridge, &c., "the Venerable Margaret"— "Foremost and leaning from her golden cloud," commemorated by the poet Gray.

(7) The right of Henry VII to the Crown, as "Conqueror," is as unimpeachable as that of William I, after the slaughter of Harold at the battle of Hastings. Any plea of a hereditary right thereto is absurd. Assuming (for the sake of argument) that the legitimation (1397 and 1407) transformed the Beaufort-bastards into genuine Plantagenets, with full right to succession to the Crown, and assuming also that the right of the House of Lancaster to the Crown (they being heirs male though not heirs general) was correct (which assumptions favour the pretensions of the House of Tudor as far as is possible) yet, even then, Henry VII was not heir male of the House of Lancaster, and, consequently, was not the heir male, as that House had been (and had, by so being, obtained the Crown) of any of the preceding kings; still less was Henry VII the heir general (which, indeed, the House of Lancaster never was) to Henry II (the founder of the Plantagenet line), in right of whom each succeeding king had reigned.

It is to be observed, also, that though Henry VII claimed to be (as, indeed, setting aside the bastardy question, his mother, whom he predeceased, actually was,) heir general (not, of course, heir male) to Henry IV and the House of Lancaster, such heirships could avail him nothing, as their right to the Crown was solely as heirs male, they not being heirs general thereof. Henry's sole descent (i.e. the legitimated one of the "double advoutrow") from any English king was through his mother, to whom (for "nemo est hæres viventis") he never was heir; that "venerable" Lady (who, if any right to the Crown, by descent, be allowed to the House of Tudor, at that epoch, must herself be classed as "Margaret, de jure Queen of England") not only surviving him, but never having resigned her shadowy right to him.

The father of Henry VII, Edmund Tudor (a Welshman, with a very small drop of English blood in his veins, see note (2)) was, indeed, uterine brother of Henry VI, but, in a question of descent and heirship, that relationship is hardly more to the purpose, that if they had been but foster brothers suckled by the same nurse.

(8) The right of Roger (Mortimer) Earl of March to the Crown (failing any issue of Richard II, the then reigning monarch), was through his mother Philippa, da. and h. of Lionel, Duke of Clarence, the next br. (who left issue) to Edward, the Black Prince, whose only child, the said king, was then childless.

Failing the king's issue, the Earl of March would be (as, in his right, Edmund, Earl of March, his son and heir, actually was, and as, also, was subsequently, Richard [Plantagenet] his grandson and heir), the heir general of Henry II, the founder of the Plantagenet line. This Richard, Duke of York, was, on 25 Oct., 1460, declared heir apparent to the Crown, the rights of the reigning King, Henry VI (who though heir male was not heir general of his line), being respected, but the prospective rights of that king's son (or of any others) as heir male, being (for the first time in English History, see note (3) ante) set aside in favour of the heir general. The deposition of Henry VI (the heir male) in favour of Edward IV (s. and h. of the said Duke Richard), the heir general, took place 4 March, 1460/1, and, ten years later, by the wholesale slaughter at and after the battle of Tewkesbury, 21 May, 1471, the said Edward IV became heir male (as well as heir general) of the Plantagenet line, which line, however, in 14 years time, was expelled from the throne by Henry Tudor, and not many years afterwards (28 Nov., 1499,) became (after existing some 350 years) finally extinct.

(9) The pedigree of Wydville is very obscure. The best seems to be in Baker's "Northamptonshire," vol. ii, p. 166, to which the mark † (in the text) refers. In this the mother of Earl Rivers is said to be Joan Beauchamp; while in most others she is said to be Mary or Elizabeth Bedleygate. There is also a somewhat curious pedigree (inasmuch as it gives the arms) in a book (of no great authority) at the College of Arms, London, by Philpot, marked with a crescent, p. 138, to which the mark * (in the text) refers. The blazon of the arms therein assigned to the families connected with Wydville is as under—viz., for Cobron, "Arg., 3 lucies hauriant, within a bordure, engr., sa;" for Bedleygate, "or, on a bend, sa, 3 mallets, arg," and for Beauchamp, "Vaire, arg and azure."

(10) Illegitimacy was the reason alleged for the exclusion of the children of Edward IV from the Crown by their uncle Richard III. Their Father's marriage in 1464 with Elizabeth, Lady Grey, was then judged illegal (on account of that king's pre-contract with Lady Eleanor Butler,) and a proclamation was issued in 1484 speaking of her as "Dame Elizabeth Grey, late calling herself Queen of England." It is to be noted that "by the ancient canon law, a contract for marriage might be valid and perfect without the church ceremony; and second marriages were liable to be annulled on account of the existence of a pre-contract until the statute of 32 Hen. VIII rescinded the same"—Sharon Turner, iii, p. 463, as quoted in Halsted's "Life of Margaret Beaufort," p. 132.

NOTES TO THE SEIZE QUARTIERS.

Nos. XX. and XXII., 2nd Series. Charles II. and James II. as also their sister, HENRIETTA-MARIA, DUCHESS OF ORLEANS. By declaration of 2 Feb. 1688/9, the throne was declared vacant since 11 Dec. 1688, on which date accordingly all hereditary right thereto, as derived from William the Conqueror and downwards ceased to be acknowledged. An interregnum of 2 months (12 Dec. 1688 to 12 Feb. 1688/9) occurred, which was terminated by the accession, 13 Feb. 1688/9, of King William III. and Queen Mary II. The hereditary (though not the parliamentary) right of course remained in King James II. (1688 to 1701) till his death on 16 Sep. 1701, when it passed [I.] to his only son and heir (by his second wife) James Francis (called by the Hanoverian party "The Old Pretender," &c.), styled, by his adherents, King James III. (1701 to 1766), whence, on his death (aged 77) 1 Jan. 1766, it passed to [II.] Charles Edward, son and heir of the above ("the young Pretender," &c.), similarly styled King Charles III. (1766 to 1788), on whose death s.p. (aged 67) 31 Jan. 1788, it passed to [III.] Henry Benedict, his only br. and h. ("Cardinal York") similarly styled King Henry IX. (1788 to 1807), on whose death unm. 13 July 1807 (aged 82) the issue of King James II. became extinct, and such hereditary right to these realms passed to [IV.] Charles Emanuel, sometime (1796 to 1802) King of Sardinia, he being son and heir of Victor Amadeus III., King of Sardinia (1773 to 1796) who was son and heir of Charles Emanuel III., King of Sardinia (1730 to 1773) who was son and heir of Victor Amadeus (of Savoy), King of Sardinia, by Anna Maria, the only child (that left issue) of her mother Henrietta Maria, first wife of Philip (of Bourbon), Duke of Orleans, the said Henrietta being the only child whose issue then (1807) remained of Charles I., King of England. This Charles Emanuel was by hereditary right King Charles IV. of England (1807 to 1819) and d. s.p. 6 Oct. 1819 being succeeded by his brother [V.] Victor Emanuel I., sometime (1802 to 1821) King of Sardinia, who by hereditary right was King Victor I. of England (1819 to 1824). He died without male issue 10 Jan. 1824 (the Kingdom of Sardinia having previously devolved on his distant cousin and heir male) and was succeeded as to the hereditary right to these realms by [VI.] Mary Beatrice his eldest da. and heir of line, wife of Francis IV., Duke of Modena, which Lady, according to such right, was Queen Mary II.[1] of England (1824 to 1840). On her death 15 Sep. 1840 [VII.] Francis, her son and heir, afterwards (1846) Duke of Modena, became, according to such right, King Francis I. of England (1840 to 1875). He died s.p. 20 Nov. 1875, and was succeeded in such right, by [VIII.] Maria Theresa, his niece and heiress, da. and sole heir of his only brother,

[1] The accession of Mary (wife of William III.) as "Queen Mary the Second," was, of course, not recognised by the Jacobite party and the adherents of the hereditary right to the Crown.

Ferdinand Charles Victor of Modena. This Lady, who was b. 2 Jul, 1849 and who m. 20 Feb. 1868, Louis, Prince of Bavaria became by such hereditary right, Queen Mary III. of England in 1875, being thus the 8th titular (jure hereditario) Sovereign, just as Queen Victoria is the 8th actual (de facto et de lege) Sovereign since the Revolution of 1688.

No. XXI, 2nd Series. Catherine of Braganza.[1] (1ª). Duke of Braganza in 1442 being an illegit. son of John I., King of Portugal. (2ª) She was first cousin to her husband, her father, Dionysius, being a younger son of James, Duke of Braganza abovenamed. Her mother Beatrix de Castro, was heiress of Lemos. (3ª) He was a younger son of Emanuel, King of Portugal (1495 to 1521) by his second wife, Mary of Arragon and Castile. See xiv, 2nd series, Nos. 3ᵉ and 4ᵉ. (12ª) This was the celebrated "Princess of Eboli." (5ᵇ) He was the Admiral of the "Invincible Armada" sent out against England.

No. XXIII. 2nd Series. Anne (Hyde), Duchess of York. There are three sources available for this table, viz. [I.] The seize quartiers of Queen Anne by "L." [probably "C. E. Long," the accomplished author of "Royal Descents," 1845] printed in the Gent. Mag. for March 1851, vol. 35, N.S., p. 283. This, though helpful as far as it goes, reaches, of course, no further back than the great grand parents of the Duchess, leaving the 16 ancestors next above untouched. [II.] "Lord Clarendon and his Trowbridge ancestry," by the Rev. W. H. Jones, M.A., F.S.A., in the Wilts "Arch Mag.," vol. ix., p. 282. This valuable little treatise probably exhausts all that can be ascertained authentically about them, but, of course, it does not elucidate the (somewhat difficult) ancestry of Frances Aylesbury (mother of the Duchess) the wife of the said Lord Clarendon. [III.] A curious M.S. entitled "The Theatre of Europe," written in 1684 by Joachim Frederick Van Bassen[2] in which the complete seize quartiers of Henry (Hyde), 2d Earl of Clarendon (brother of the said Duchess) are given, but such completeness is manifestly at the expense of their accuracy.

In Mr. Jones' article, above alluded to, it is stated that the first insinuation that can be traced as to the Duchess of York's mother having been a "tub woman," &c., is in the "Gen. Evening Post" of 29 March, 1787. Such rumours appear to have been transmitted by the posterity of Mary of Modena; tho' it should be observed that the maternal

[1] The Editor of these "Seize Quartiers" is indebted to Mr. Josef Klemme, Librarian of the foreign office, Vienna (whose knowledge of foreign genealogy is as extensive as it is accurate) for the completion of innumerable gaps (which had previously existed) in this table. Mr. Klemme observes truly that "in these seize quartiers are many interesting persons viz. (1) the celebrated Duke of Ossuna; (2) Medina Sidonia, the Admiral of the Armada; (3) Ruy Gomez, and (4) his consort the Princess of Eboli; (5) the Duke of Lerma, Prime Minister to PHILIP III. of Spain; and (6) Donna Isabel de Borgia, da. of Francis de Borgia, General of the Order of Jesuits, afterwards canonised under the name of St. Francis of Borgia."

[2] See some account of this book in Howard's "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" (2d series, vol iv. p. 264) where the seize quartiers of James, Duke of Monmouth, are printed (verbatim) therefrom. The book contains 129 of such tables, of which, however, the greater part are those of Foreigners, in which the author's information is much more to be relied upon than in those of the English and Scotch.

pedigree of that Lady (which stops altogether at her grandfather) contrasts unfavourably with that of the Duchess' grandfather, Sir Thomas Aylesbury, or with that of any other of her grandparents.

(1ª) By his first wife, Margaret Holland, of Denton, he was ancestor of the family of Hyde long settled at Norbury. (4ª) "Maria Lenthall, da. to the Baron of Wilwood"[1], according to "Van Bassen." (5ª) He was "Baron of Troughbridge in Wiltshire,[1] according to "Van Bassen," but in all probability was a Clothier thereof. (6ª) "Maria Rooper [i.e. Roper of Eltham, co. Kent], da. to the Baron of Eltham".[1] according to Van Bassen. (9ª) Said to be "of Enderston, Esqueir" by Van Bassen. (10ª) She was da. of "Sir Thomas Golbynne",[1] according to Van Bassen. (12ª) "Petronella Bercley [i.e., Berkeley of Wymondham, co. Leicester] da. to the Baron of Widmundham",[1] according to Van Bassen. (13ª) "Anton Denman, Baron of Retford",[1] according to Van Bassen. (14ª) This Lady was "Maria Bernsley, da. to the Baron of Bernsleyhall"[1], according to Van Bassen. (15ª) He was one of the 20 children of Sir Thomas Blount, of Kinlet, Salop, being his 5th son by Ann, da. of Sir Richard Croft. (16ª) According to Croke's "Croke family, originally named Le Blount" (vol. ii, p. 384), this Robert Blount, married at Eckington in 1565, "Goodeth Newson." She may, however, have been a second wife, for "Elizabeth Columbell" is generally assigned to him. (1ᵇ) He m. firstly Mary, by whom he had issue. (2ᵇ) In her will she mentions the carpet wherein the arms of Hyde and Sybell are wrought. (4ᵇ) This Lady, the wife of "Edward Langfort, Baron of Troubridge," was, according to Van Bassen[1], an entirely different person, viz., "Susanna, da. of Ricard Corbed [i.e., Corbet] of Cambridge (son to the Baron of Sprowston), by Raba Coulpeper [i.e., Culpeper] da. to the Esqueir of Turresway." (5ᵇ) Lic. from Bp. of London, 12 July 1603, to marry Dorothy Gwillams, aged 60, widow. It appears that this Dorothy "an old woman" was bur. (on the same day that he was) at St. Andrews' Holborn. (7ᵇ) Called "Baron of Redfort",[1] by Van Bassen. (8ᵇ) This Lady is an entirely different person according to Van Bassen,[1] who styles her "Elizabeth, da. of Francis Beaumont.[2] Barron of Gracedieu, Justiciar at the Commonwealth, by Anna Pierrepoint." Such an Elizabeth, b. 1589, apparently existed, but she is said to have m. Thomas Seyliard: neither could she, if born in 1589, have been mother of Ann Denman who m. but 22 years later. (1ᶜ) He at the age of 16 (and his brother, Laurence, aged 17) matric. at Oxford (Mag. Hall) in 1579; B.A., 21 Nov. 1581; M.A., 10 Dec. 1584. (2ᶜ) Arms for Langford, viz., "Paly of 6, arg. and gu., over all a bend of the first," were habitually quartered with Hyde by her descendants. They appear on the plate of the tomb of King Henry VII., in Sandford's "Geneal. Hist." (1707) p. 475, dedicated to Edward, Earl of Clarendon (the Chancellor); in the old folio copy of Clarendon's "Rebellion;" in the Garter plate of Laurence (Hyde), Earl of Rochester, &c. (3ᶜ) He matric. at Oxford (Ch. Ch.) 24 Nov. 1598, aged 18; B.A., 20 June 1602; M.A., 9 June 1605. (4ᶜ) As to this Lady, who is generally (not, however, by Van Bassen) called (erroneously) "FRANCES,"

[1] There does not, however, appear to be any authority for such statement.

see a most exhaustive account by Col. Chester in his Westm. Abbey Registers, p. 153.

No. XXIV, 2nd series. Mary of Modena. (1[a]) He was son of Alphonso, Marquis of Monteccio, by Julia, da. of Francis (de Ruvere), Duke of Urbino, which Alphonso was a younger son of Alphonso I.f Duke of Ferrara, Modena, &c., 1505 to 1534, and a younger brother of Hercules, Duke thereof, 1534 to 1558, and of Alphonso II., Duke thereof, 1558 to 1597. (5[a]) He was great grandson of the celebrated Alexander Farnese, POPE PAUL III. (1534-49), who procured the Dukedoms of Parma, &c., for his son Pedro, father of Octavius, Duke of Parma, &c., the father of this Alexander. (6[a]) She was sister to Catalina [see No. xxiv, 2nd series, No. 2[b]] wife of John, Duke of Braganza, great grandmother to Catherine, Queen Consort to Charles II. (7[a]) According to Van Bassen (see note to No. xxiii) in his seize quartiers of the Duke of Modena of 1684, he was "Duke de St. Hora." (8[a]) According to Van Bassen (as above) she was da. of Peter Aldobrandini, the brother of the Pope. (13[a]) See Pere Anselme. (3[c]) He is called by Van Bassen (as above) "Earl Martinoses," son of "(—) De Martinoses, a Nobil Romain." Miss Strickland (in her "Mary Beatrice of Modena") calls him "Count Hieronimo Martinozzi da Fano, a Roman Nobleman of ancient family." Pere Anselme speaks of him as "Gentilhomme Romain," though in one place he calls him "Count." (4[c]) Her only sister, Hieronyme, m. Michel Laurent Mancini, "Baron Romain," and d. 29 Dec. 1656, leaving issue, who inherited the chief part of the property of Cardinal Mazarini and adopted his name. (2[d]) Her sister, the other coheir, was Anne Marie, who m. 22 Feb. 1654, Armand de Bourbon, Prince of Conti, and who d. 4 Feb. 1672 at Parisaged 3. 5,
