WIGAN THE MARSHAL.

A pretty little 12th century pedigree may be sketched by collating the Pipe Rolls, the Testa, the Rotuli Curiæ Regis, and the Liber Niger, in their entries relative to this man and his descendants.

Wigan was enfeoffed to hold, by sergeantry, as a Marshal, by Henry I.,[2] between 1133 and 1135. We get this limit of date from Rot. Cur. Reg. I. 21, where the pleadings set forth that the charter enfeoffing him was produced in court in 1194.

"in quâ continetur quod ipse [Henry I] dedit ei totam terram Galfridi Luvet et Rogeri de Causton et heredibus suis post eum in feodo et hereditate sicut eam habuit in manu et dominio suo die qua mare transivit veniendo in Normanniam (August 1133) in illo anno quo natus fuit nepos suus Henricus filius Matillidis Imperatricis."

This is a most interesting recital of this early charter. Wigan lived to receive from Henry II. an estate at 'Wyleby,' co. Oxon "cum Juliana Pantulf,"[3]—who, from her grandson bearing the name of Ivo, must have been nearly related to Ivo Pantulf—and died, it would seem, in 1163, for we find his son and heir, Ralph, charged with 100 marcs for his relief at Michaelmas of that year.[4] This Ralph makes the return of 1166.[5] His wife's name, in 1194, was Cicily.[6] The rest of the pedigree is taken from Testa (p. 87b).

Wigan, the Marshal, living 1135, died 1163=Juliana Pantulf

Ralph fitz Wigan=Cicely living 1194.	William, heir to his brother	Thurstan, heir to his nephew.
	Ivo, heir to his father ob. s.p.

The pedigree, as stated, rather suggests that Juliana may have been a second wife. But I give it merely quantum valeat.

J. H. Round.

[2] Liber Niger: "Carta de feodis Wigani Marescalli."
[3] Testa de Nevill, p. 87b.
[4] Pipe Roll 9 Hen. II. p. 31.
[5] Liber Niger, Ed. 1774, I. 178.
[6] Rot. Cur. Reg. I. 20.