DESCENT OF ELIZABETH WYDVILLE, QUEEN CONSORT OF KING EDWARD IV.

The following is from a tracing of a pedigree signed by Dethick, the original being at Rome in the possession of Prince Orsini. As the descent of Elizabeth Wydville is still a matter of interest to many genealogists, this pedigree, drawn up in 1601, and signed by the then Garter King of Arms, is one of considerable value. On the original the arms of each match are impaled and coloured, but are here blasoned only, and in the case of sons and daughters bearing the same arms as their father's the blason is not repeated.
